MY FORUM

My last job interview was very stressful. The interviewer first asked me if I had ever worked before. Then she was interested in why I had left my previous job and how I had heard about that vacancy. She also wanted to know how I saw myself in 10 years' time. I don't quite understand why she asked if I was married. The next question, though, was the toughest – she wanted to know how much I expected to earn. I think she liked my answers because finally she wanted to know when I would be available to start working.
